The purpose of the Internship course series (AAAP 609 & 607) is to provide a framework for students as they explore their professional interests and gain essential work-learning experiences that will inform year two of their degree program and future career goals. AAAP 609 is designed to facilitate self-assessment, increase knowledge of career paths in the preservation field, and strengthen skills in researching and applying to internship opportunities. Students will begin to clarify learning goals for the summer internship, as well as create application materials that best represent their interests and abilities.
